

- OZMUN LOOP: John Ozmun came from Orange County, NY and ran a sawmill in the 1840s on land adjacent to the Lansing Center Trail.
 - TOWNLEY LOOP: Richard Townley (for whom Townley Creek was named), arrived in Lansing from Pennsylvania. The family had sold land in Pennsylvania in 1789 to Pennsylvania to create a village to house Marie Antoinette and the Dauphin. They never made it to Pennsylvania.
 - SHOEMAKER LOOP: Jacob Shoemaker came from Strasburg, PA and farmed 300 acres. The loop is near the foundation of Shoemaker's home.
 - KNETTLES LOOP: Kettles, a farmer, was active in local politics. He served himself a Democrat until 1851, when he became a Republican.
 - TERPENING LOOP: Terpening Corners was the name given to a major intersection near the Lansing Center Trail. Terpening is an old Dutch name.
 - HEDDEN LOOP: Hedden's Creek runs through the Lansing Center Trail. Aaron Hedden came to Lansing in 1803, and died in 1864 at age 61.
 - MUNSON LOOP: The Munsons have been farming in Lansing since at least the mid-1800s. Many Munsons still call Lansing home.
 - CONLON LOOP: The Conlons settled here from Ireland in 1830. Andrew, one of 8 sons, served as Lansing's Justice of the Peace and as the Tappan County Board of Supervisors... marrying Katherine Kettles, another cornerstone Lansing family.
- MILTON CORNERS: Milton was the name of the military installation founded in 1789 and subsequently subdivided. Lansing was repositioned out in 1817.
- LOUISE REMERT LANE: Street named for Louise Remert, who was our beloved Town of Lansing Historian from 1981-2022.
